

This country is supposed to be a democracy, where the will of the people guides the branches of the government, not a military state, where decisions are made unilaterally. Why isn't the American public being allowed to express its views on this issue -- especially when its right to unbiased reporting is at stake?